

Just because I have stripes does not mean I should be on Death Row

I actually make quite a wonderful pet. I am as independent as a cat, but am as trainable as a dog. I do not bark. I am very playful and enjoy many toys. I am litter box trained. My scent bags were removed when I was just a kit. Even my wild cousins only spray after giving fair warning and fearing for their lives. I can only get rabies when bitten by a rabid animal. I will bond well with my family, but I am usually very scared of strangers, so I would rather hide from them than try yapping at them or begging for their attention. Most people say I am cute, so what I do not understand is why it is legal to hunt and try to kill me year round, but a crime to have me as a pet?

I would love to be allowed to be your pet.

Thank You,
Pepe
