In-fighting and unpaid bills are at the center of a massive dispute at the Wild Animal Orphanage.

Friday, the new leadership says things have been fixed, but not everyone is convinced.

Last Saturday things at the Wild Animal Orphanage came to a head when locks were changed and care-takers say they couldn't even get in to feed the more than 400 exotic, wild and domestic animals.

In the days since, things have changed.

Christopher Heath has the story.
